Castlewellan Arboretum and Annesley Garden

The walled Annesley Garden, dating from 1740, provides a central focal point for the National Arboretum. This magnificent collection of trees and shrubs, set in beautiful surroundings, also incorporates fountains, ponds, ornamental greenhouses and broad sweeping vistas.

In terms of size, age and condition of the trees, this collection ranks among the top three arboreta in the British Isles and the finest in Ireland.

It includes -

- 20 oldest existing specimens in the British Isles
- 42 'champion' trees of the British Isles
- 50 'champion' trees of Ireland.

Access: Via. Castlewellan Forest Park
(admission charge)

Open: Every day 10.00am to sunset
